

Anežka Kuzmičová

Anežka Kuzmičová is an interdisciplinary SSH researcher studying reading and literacy from the viewpoint of children's lived experiences. Having earned her PhD at Stockholm University (2013) and worked in Canada, Denmark and the UK over the years, she now runs a cross-faculty research group at Charles University, Prague, since 2020. She has won the Neuron Prize for Promising Scientists (2022) and is currently embarking on her ERC StG project, Ways of Imagining in Children's Lives with Information Texts (WONDRE; 2024-2029).

